“Thrilled is an understatement,” enthuses Sharon Bullied about her response when her salon was named winner of the Community Service Award. A relative newcomer—she bought her salon five years ago at the age of 19—Bullied has achieved a lot.

“I knew how to cut hair but had to learn how run a business. And I wanted to do something more. We have been into fundraising from the beginning.” Their special focus is on cancer, particularly breast cancer. “We have ‘pink promotions’ that include everything from pink hair dryers to pink manicures to pink highlights.”

Their big success story is their activism in the community—at their fundraiser last June, they involved 20 local businesses. In fact, just before she received the Contessa on behalf of her salon, Bullied won Entrepreneur of the Year for East Gwillimbury.
